1ST PARENT-TEACHER MEETING

The first meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the High School. The President, Mrs. Julian Foard, presided, welcoming the friends, members and faculty of the school. Mrs. D. W. Stevens read the minutes of the lasting meeting. After roll call to which 30 members responded, the picture was presented to the first, second and third grades for having the most parents present.

A club of little girls comprising Erma Otwell, Virginia Truitt, Margaret Tyler Helen Foard, Charlotte Donaghay, Eunice Horsey, Madeline Smith and Adelaide Green presented $10 for the playground equipment which had been made from a bazaar held during the summer.

Mr. E. P. Vogel spoke of the splendid work done by the Middletown boys at the meeting of the Eastern State Boys' and Girls' Club recently held at Springfield, Mass.

Prof. McKnight gave a report of the playground equipment. The cost of the swings, seesaws and sliding boards amounted to $151.50.

Mrs. John B. Cleaver spoke of the state meeting of the Association held during the past summer at Newark, during the session of the Summer School. She also gave an outline of the program to be given during the year throughout the state.

Mrs. Heldmyer and her assistants served refreshments during the social hour.

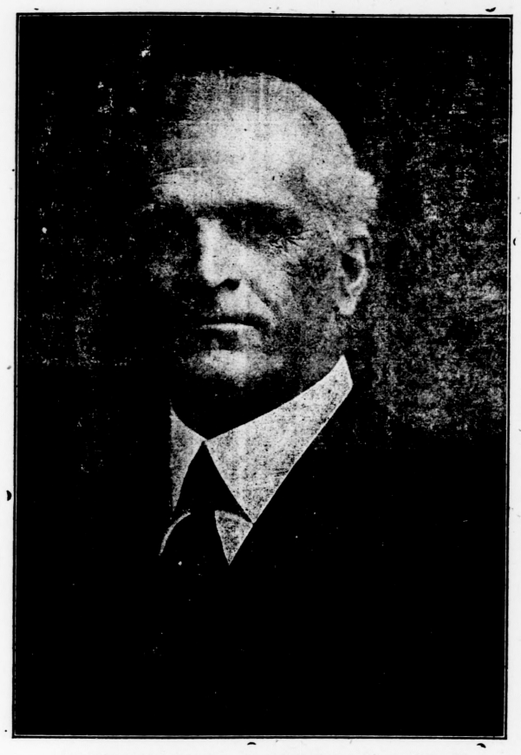
THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF BETHESDA M. E. CHURCH

A Very Interesting Program Together With The History And Growth of The Church

BISHOP McDOWELL WILL FILL THE PULPIT

In founding the Bethesda Methodist Episcopal Church, the first meeting was called February 13th, 1822. The first Board of Trustees were Azariah Foster, Andrew Dill, Thomas Merritt, John Hays and Thomas Low. A subscription was opened for funds to build the new church edifice February 22d, 1822. The Trustees accepted the offer of Mr. John Hays giving them a lot of ground for fifty dollars. An Act of Incorporation was secured and recorded at the County seat in Book 7, Volume 3, page 113. When the subscriptions reached the sum of $650.00, the contract to build was let to Mr. John Fountain, for $900.00. The house was finished April 11th, 1823. $53.68 were given him for extra work.



BISHOP WILLIAM F. McDOWELL, D. D., LL. D.

In 1842, the question of extension and repairs was considered at a meeting presided over by Pastor Benjamin F. Price, Daniel B. McKee, Garrett Cox and Benjamin Fields, they being a committee to estimate the cost of enlarging, so the church would measure 40x60 feet, but the purpose was not carried out until seven years later. In 1849, with Rev. John Henry as Pastor, it was determined to rebuild the church with dimensions 40x52 feet. Jesse Lake, Jonathan Catlin, Garrett Cox, Thomas E. Clayton, Joseph W. Gary, Alexander M. Vail and Philip D. Riley were the Building Committee, Mr. Riley being the Chairman.

The cornerstone was laid in 1849, Rev. Pennel Coomb, Rev. John M. Roach and Rev. Mr. Frieze officiating. Mr. John Pierce received $3900.00 and the old church building as payment in full for the new church.

In 1879, the pastor, Rev. Thomas E. Martindale, believing that the time had come to again enlarge the church building, a meeting of the congregation was held April 29, 1879, where the following paper was adopted:

WHEREAS the present church building has been in constant use for 30 years without material alteration or enlargement, and in the growth of the town and congregation has become too small to accommodate the people, therefore,

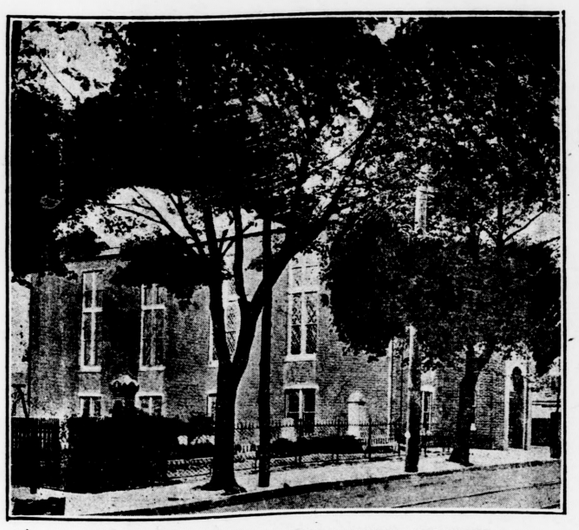
Resolved that we believe it is due to ourselves to the successful preaching of the Gospel and to the glory of God: that we should enlarge and remodel our church building.

Resolved second, that we hereby agree together to proceed at once to make the necessary arrangements for the prosecution of this work. The Trustees, Stewards and Class Leaders meeting Friday, May 2d, unanimously concurred in the action taken by the congregation. The following were appointed to canvass for subscriptions, Rev. T. E. Martindale, A. G. Cox, W. H. Moore, M. D. Wilson, G. E. Hukill and T. E. Hurn.

The services of Mr. Benjamin Price, Architect, of Philadelphia, were secured to give a general plan of the proposed changes. It was estimated that the work, exclusive of the steeple and tower, would cost about $4,000. The following resolution was then adopted:

WHEREAS we have secured three-fourths of the amount necessary to repair the church as contemplated. RESOLVED that we do now begin work.

The following building committee was appointed: G. E. Hukill, M. D. Wilson, J. M. Cox and the pastor. J. M. Cox was made chairman and G. E. Hukill, treasurer. During the six months the work was in progress, the congregation by the kind invitation of the Forest Presbyterian Church, worshipped jointly in their church, the pastors alternating in the conduct of the services. The Ladies' Mite Society assumed the entire work of furnishing the church at a cost of $650.



BETHESDA METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

On Sunday, December 21st, 1879, the new building was formally re-opened and re-dedicated. Bishop Levi Scott and his son, Rev. Alfred T. Scott, a former pastor, were present, Rev. Jacob Todd, D. D., preaching in the morning and Rev. L. C. Matlack, D. D., in the evening. Rev. T. E. Martindale, the pastor, received subscriptions during the day amounting to $2400, making the whole amount raised for the improvements, $5,600.

In 1882, Rev. W. L. S. Murray, pastor, the entire church was cushioned.

In 1896, during the pastorate of Rev. Isaac L. Wood, the church was thoroughly renovated at a cost of $700. In 1889, under the same pastorate, a new organ was installed and other improvements made at an expense of $1200.

At the Philadelphia Annual Conference, held in Philadelphia, April 5th, 1837, Middletown and Cantwell's Bridge were separated from the circuit and made a separate charge.

From 1837 to 1921, the following Presiding Elders had charge of the churches at Middletown and Odessa: David Daily, Henry White, Daniel Lambdin, Henry White, J. T. Hazzard, T. J. Quigley, Anthony Atwell, T. J. Thompson, William Urie, Thomas J. Thompson, John D. Curtis, T. C. Murphey, John Hough, Charles Hill, Thomas E. Martindale, John France, Alfred Smith, W. F. Corkran, W. G. Koons, R. K. Stephenson, Robert Watt, W. A. Wise.

1916-18—J. W. Jones.
1918- —V. P. Northrup, the present Pastor.

At the Philadelphia Annual Conference, 1859, Middletown was made a separate station. During the years from 1869 to 1872, Middletown was within the bounds of the Wilmington District; since that time, it has been located in the Easton District. In 1920, a District Parsonage was purchased in Middletown, making it the head of the District, and the name was changed from Easton District to Middletown District, at the Conference session of 1921.

The fourteenth session of the Wilmington Annual Conference, in the year 1882, convened in Bethesda Methodist Episcopal Church, Bishop John F. Hurst, D. D., LL. D., presiding. The Conference session was one of great interest to Middletown people. At this session, Alfred G. Cox was elected Treasurer of the Conference Missionary Society. In March, 1893, during the pastorate of Rev. N. M. Browne, Wilmington Conference was again entertained by Bethesda Church. It was presided over by Bishop Stephen M. Merrill, D. D., LL. D.

Since 1822 the Trustees of the church have been as follows: Azarah Foster, Andrew Dill, Thomas Low, Thos. Merritt, John Hays, John S. Merritt, David McKee, Garrett Cox, Benjamin Fields, Jesse Lake, Jonathan Catlin, Thos. E. Clayton, Joseph W. Gary, Alexander M. Vail, Philip D. Riley, Louis E. Pennington, Daniel B. McKee, Henry Davis, Nehemiah Burris, Manlove D. Wilson, Alfred G. Cox, Martin E. Walker, Samuel W. Roberts, Gideon E. Hukill, Benjamin T. Biggs, James Culbertson, Robert H. Eliason, John Drummond, Sewell C. Biggs, John P. Wilson, Martin B. Burris, James Jarrell, William Brockson, John W. Jolls, Henry Clayton, William H. Moore.

The following have been the Sunday School Superintendents: Philip D. Riley. Jesse Lake. Joseph W. Gary, Alfred G. Cox, W. J. H. Lingo, Martin B. Burris.

In 1910, during the pastorate of Rev. V. S. Collins, D. D., the Church was remodeled and re-decorated. New light fixtures were installed, a new carpet was laid and the pipe organ was rebuilt and changed from the rear of the pulpit and placed at the side. The cost of this work was $7000.00.

During the second pastorate of Rev. C. T. Wyatt, D. D., in 1910, the parsonage was rebuilt, two rooms being added, making it a delightfully comfortable home for the Pastor, at a cost of $4000.00.

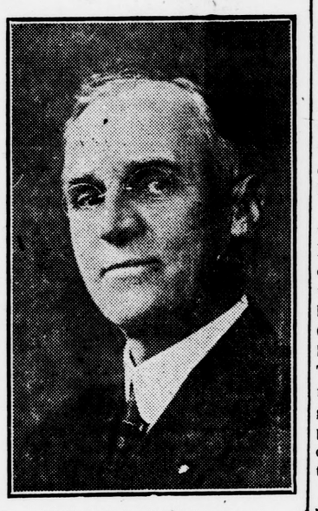
SCHOOL SUPTS. AND PRINCIPALS

Under the direction of the French Restoration Fund, which numbers on its committee many of the most prominent representatives of France and America, it has been proposed to present Marshall Foch, on his coming visit to this country, with a large and beautiful medal, and with a fund collected by the school children of this country to be used in building two superb High Schools in the devastated region of France, to be known as the "Washington-Lafayette" and the "Foch-Pershing" High Schools. Duplicates of the medal are also to be presented to President Harding and to General Pershing.



REV. W. A. WISE, D. D.
District Supt., Middletown District

This project commends itself at once as a worth while manner of showing our friendly sentiments toward our noble ally in the war. It must prove an inspiration and a blessing to the war-torn section in which 6000 schools were ruthlessly demolished. Governor Cooper, of South Carolina, says in this connection, "I do not know of a greater loss that can come to a people than to be deprived of schools, and conversely, no greater contribution can be made to people than the gift of schools.

In order that we of Delaware may not be behind our sister states in this good work, I am asking that October 17th be set aside as a day for special observance of this work, with a review of relations between France and America. This date is particularly fitting, as it commemorates the surrender of Cornwall's troops to Washington, aided by French troops under Lafayette, and the French fleet under Comte de Grasse, and bringing to a successful conclusion the struggle for liberty, which without the timely assistance of France, must have been a dismal failure. It is suggested that a collection for this purpose be made on October 17th, after proper preparation during the previous week.

The responsibility for the conduct of any exercises considered appropriate, and the collection should be given over to the pupils to just as great an extent as they are willing to accept it. Possibly some money may be made on an appropriate public entertainment and contributed to the cause.

In any case, preparation for the occasion may be made a very useful group project for classes in Community Civics, English and History. The wide-awake administrator will grasp a chance to motivate class work, and the more that is made out of that possibility, the better contribution his school will be able to make.

Checks covering the school total, and drawn to the order of W. D. Denney, should be mailed to me not later than October 20th. A quota of from $6,000.00 to $10,000.00 has been suggested for each State.

Very truly yours,
H. V. HOLLOWAY,
State Supt. of Public Instruction.

Approved:
W. D. DENNEY,
Governor of Delaware.

EXPEL REV. WESTREN

Elkton's Marrying Parson Admitted Splitting Fees

APPEALED ACTION OF THE JURY

Admitting he had been "splitting fees" with taxi drivers and was thus "trafficking in marriages" at Elkton, Md., the Rev. R. T. Westren, an ordained Methodist Episcopal preacher, who was given a church trial in Wilmington Tuesday night, was found guilty of conduct unbecoming a minister, formally expelled from the church and his ordination papers ordered taken from him.

The trial was held quietly by the Mt. Salem Quarterly Conference of the Wilmington district. Elkton is embraced within this district, of which the Rev. Dr. Robert Watt is superintendent It was upon Dr. Watt's initiative that Mr. Westren was called before the bar of the church to explain his conduct as a marrying parson at Maryland's notorious Gretna Green.

Mr. Westren, according to his statement appealed to the Wilmington M. E. Conference from the action of the ecclesiastical jury in ousting him from the ministery Tuesday night. He had been a member of the Montana M. E. Conference. The church records show he was "located without his consent." That action, according to a clergyman familiar with the church procedure, gave Mr. Westren the status of a local preacher. although he had retained his credentials as an ordained minister of the church.

District Superintendent Watt Wednesday sent formal notification to Mr. Westren of the finding of the church jury, notified Mr. Westren that he had been deposed from the Methodist Episcopal ministry, and called upon him to turn his ordination papers over to Dr. Watt or some recognized church authority. Dr. Watt at the same time notified State's Attorney Warburton, at Elkton, of the finding of the ecclesiastical jury and set forth that Mr. Westren no longer is empowered to marry couples under authority of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Work For Jobless on Roads

Immediate work on the roads of Delaware was recommended by the employment bureau of the Department of Labor as a means of temporarily lessening unemployment in this State.

Senator L. Heisler Ball will be asked to make every effort to secure early adoption of the good roads bill now before Congress so that money will be made available for highway construction. It was explained to officials at the Department of Labor that Delaware's share of the money appropriated by the Federal Congress to aid the State in road construction is pitably small. This matter will be brought to the attention of the proper authorities with a view to have the system of apportionment changed so that the Diamond State will get more liberal consideration.

The plan to rush road building is believed by Secretary Davis, of the Department of Labor, not only to be advisable but necessary. Many thousands of men can be absorbed in such work and it will be of a character that will add to the material wealth of the nation, the secretary believes.

Buddhist Shrine From Thibet

(Photos by American Museum of Natural History)

By J. H. DAVIES.
(American Museum of Natural History.)

THERE has just been placed on temporary exhibit in the American Museum of Natural History, New York city, a remarkable Buddhist shrine from Thibet, with Thibetan carpet, prayer-mat, temple guardians, altar vessels, images, sacred banners and holy book reciting the praises of Buddha. This is probably the finest assemblage of Thibetan religious objects ever brought together.

It represents a part of the collecting done by Alexander Scott, a British artist whose interest in Indian and Thibetan archaeology dates back forty years. For twenty-six years he made his home in Darjeeling, India, on the highway of Thibet. Before Sir Francis Younghusband's expedition into Thibet, Mr. Scott had coaxed and won his way into the land of mystery. Gifted as an artist and sympathetic as a scholar, his interest in Thibetan Buddhism, or Lamaism, was twofold, and resulted in personal friendships with the Lamas, or priests.

One of them, Dousand Up, was thoroughly grounded in Thibetan religious customs and traditions. He freely imparted to Mr. Scott detailed information and explanations of the many objects secured by him. This Lama took the highly enlightened attitude of being glad to explain his religion to the foreigners, in order, as he said, that they might see and understand its beauties and philosophical significance. As Dousand Up had a fine mind and a remarkable command of English, expressing himself after the manner of a cultivated Englishman, his assistance has been invaluable to Mr. Scott.

So completely was Mr. Scott accepted by one of his Thibetan Lama friends that on one occasion, when he remarked that an altar, which was greatly overcrowded, could be made much more beautiful, he was actually invited to rearrange it according to his own ideas. And when he had performed his task to his own satisfaction, not only did the Lamas delight in the changes he had wrought, but they made him gifts in token of their appreciation.

Mr. Scott was commissioned by the University Museum of Philadelphia to collect antiquities, especially sculpture of the Indo-Bactrian and Gupta eras. He obtained a splendid series of bronzes and other material for that institution, which is to be used as a basis for the building up of a collection illustrating the culture of Thibet and India.

The central figure is that of Padma (teacher) Sambhava, "the Lotus-born,"—the great "guru' or saint who 800 years ago entered Thibet, at the invitation of the Thibetan king, and became the first teacher of Buddhism in Thibet. Sambhava was a Hindu from Udyana and on his teachings were grafted the essentials of the Siva worship of the Hindus. It is to his influence that the strongly Hindu character of the rites and mythology of present-day Buddhism in Thibet is to be traced.

The other typical character of Lamaism is its admixture of demonology, a relic of Thibetan aboriginal "shamanism," the religion of ghosts and local demons. From the primitive shamanistic element arises the use of carved human bones in the making of religious regalia and other objects. The bones are the relics of very holy Lamas, long dead, who are supposed to be honored in the practice.

In all oriental religions, symbolism predominates and the shrine of Padma Sambhava, at the American Museum, is an instance of this kind of significance.

The saint wears a mitre topped with a vulture's feather. As the vulture is the biggest and farthest flier, the feather here indicates that the doctrine of this "guru" is the most aspiring, and his knowledge the most noble and spiritual.

In his right hand he holds a 'dorje" or thunderbolt, implying divine protection and eternal life.

His left hand grasps the skull bowl containing blood or "amita," ("sweet dew," the ambrosial food of supernatural beings), signifying blessings.

Resting lightly across his breast and against his left shoulder, leans a trident, its three points signifying that he has overcome the three vices, Lust, Anger and Sloth. The image is finely wrought in copper, and the face is coated with pure gold, highly burnished.

The shrine is flanked on each side by a great brass sacred lamp of exquisite workmanship. One of these is the finest Mr. Scott has ever seen.

On the steps leading to the altar are a number of brass dog-like or lion-like figures, elaborately designed and inscribed. These are the guardians of the temple.

Stretched on the steps is a Ming prayer-mat at least 400 years old.

The side walls are hung with beautiful banners in the sacred colors and symbols.

On a carved stool set with turquoise and coral lies a holy book reciting in gold letters on dark blue parchment the praises of Buddha.

And most precious of all, spread before the altar, is one of the three Thibetan carpets known to exist—all of them being at present in Mr. Scott's possession. Tradition has it that carpets were once woven in Thibet. But for many years none has been known to be in existence. When, however, the first Sikh Maharajah, Golab Singh, was installed over Kashmir, tribute was sent to him from Thibet, and among the gifts were three beautiful carpets, all of the same size and of similar design. For the best part of 100 years these lay in the palace Tosha Khana or storehouse in Kashmir. Recently they were sold at public auction in Srinagar, where Mr. Scott purchased one and later obtained the others from two Indian nobles who had secured them at the auction.

The carpets, like the Thibetan prayer-mats, show Chinese taste blended with Thibetan symbolism, and were doubtless made in Thibet by Chinese weavers. Just as the carpets and mats show the influence of China, a large proportion of Thibetan metal-work strongly reflects Indian culture, as from time immemorial the Newaris, or mechanics of Nepal, in India, have worked in metal for the Thibetans.

Laid on the shrine as votive offerings are many little images, some of gold inlaid with turquoise and lapis lazuli. In some cases, these are images of Krishna, probably left by Hindus who, without worshiping Buddha, reverence him and are willing to make gifts to his temples.

Most of these objects were looted from Thibetan temples by the Chinese expedition which was sent into Thibet after the British, under Sir Francis Younghusband, had departed from Lhassa, the Lamaistic Holy City. A part of the Chinese expedition returned home by way of India, disposing of its loot to Parsee or Hindu curiosity dealers on the way. Thus many great rarities were for a time obtainable by connoisseurs lucky enough to be on the spot. And of these, Mr. Scott, as results show, was, thanks to his knowledge and experience, one of the most "lucky."

This Sir Francis Younghusband was born in India and served as British political agent in various parts of that country. In 1903 he was appointed British commissioner for negotiating with China a settlement of relations between India and Thibet. In 1904 he was at the head of an expedition that forced its way to Lhassa.

Thibet has always been a land of mystery—and is yet, for that matter. The region is one of the least known places of earth. It is there that an American expedition is searching for the "missing link," the earliest form of man. To the south of it lie the Himalayas and Mount Everest, as everyone knows, is the highest peak on the earth's surface (29,000 feet.) It has never been ascended and an expedition is now making a careful and persistent attempt to reach its summit.

Thibet itself appears to be the roof of the world; it is the most elevated country on the globe. The northern part is believed to have an average elevation of 15,000 feet. What that means can be imagined by anyone who has climbed Pikes Peak in Colorado, which is 14,155 feet high. The people are of the Mongol stock. The population is believed to approximate 3,500,000. There are supposed to be 50,000 lamas. These lamas are devoted to celibacy and live in lamaseries, or monasteries, of which there are said to be 3,000. Many of these lamaseries are of great size, housing thousands. Polyandry prevails among the people.

China has exercised a rule of sorts over Thibet since the Eighteenth century, more especially as to its foreign relations. Government appears to be largely local. For ages the chief authority rested with the Grand Lama, whose capital was Lhassa, a city of about 25,000 people.

In consequence of the 1904 British expedition under Sir Francis Younghusband, at least a part of the authority was transferred to the Grand Lama of Tashi-lunpo, near Shigatse. There is also a Chinese resident in Thibet. This British expedition forced various concessions in trade and in the foreign relations of the country, which for a century had been practically a closed nation. Thibet is principally famous, perhaps, as the seat of that form of Buddhism known as Lamaism.

Whales Grow Rapidly.

A member of the Brooklyn Institute museum, Brooklyn, N. Y., who has made a special study of whales in Newfoundland, states that the average length of a full-grown sulphur-bottom whale is just under eighty feet, according to an exchange. This estimate disregards the exaggerated reports sometimes spread by sailors, and is based on actual measurements of many individual specimens. There seems to be credible accounts of whales reaching a length of from eighty-five to ninety-five feet, but the authority did not see any of that size. Whales appear to grow with great rapidity, the length of "yearlings" being estimated at from thirty to thirty-five feet.

Tattooing an Ancient Adornment.

Dating from ancient times is that favorite form of proclaiming one's love for the briny deep—the tattoo—and in its early days this form of adornment was held most honorable. The Polynesians are known to have been adepts in the art, and from that time to this there have always been people who have been attracted to this form of beauty. These decorations have taken all sorts of forms, from the plain black and white work to that in the most variegated colorings, to say nothing of the method of "gash" tattooing, which consists of cutting deep gashes in the desired design, filling them with clay and then letting them remain as a sort of cameo on the flesh.

Lightning Cleanses the Air.

Lightning is extremely healthful, asserts a scientist who has made that his life study. He does not mean that it is healthful to the person lightning strikes. What he means is this: "Lightning produces nitric acid and cleans the whole atmosphere of noxious exhalations." Had there never been a flash if lightning upon this earth in all the years of its existence the air now would be so foul that living would be impossible, some scientists say.

Couldn't Get Away.

At the end of a two-hour harrangue there was only one person left in the hall besides the speaker, an elderly man, who was seated close to the rostrum and had his hands clasped over the head of a walking stick. "My friend," said the orator effusively, as he descended from the platform and extended his hand, "I want to thank you for having the courtesy to hear my speech through to the end, although everybody else in the hall got up and walked out." "Umph!" replied the old gentleman, fretfully, "I've been paralyzed in my legs for ten years. My son promised to come after me an hour ago and he's not here yet."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Few Little Smiles

REFINED ANXIETEIS.

"You say firearms have been barred from Crimson Gulch."

"Yes," replied Cactus Joe. "They make us nervous."

"The boys didn't use to be afraid of a few bullets."

"They're not afraid of bullets; but every time a gun was fired everybody went into a panic, thinkin' mebbe one of his tires had exploded."

Quite Likely.

Two busy stenographers in an office in the American building were watching the crowd of men in the street gazing at the baseball score board.

Said one: I wish they would send more heat up here, for I feel chilly.

"No wonder," the other quickly replied. "The low temperature is due to the many 'fans' around."—Baltimore American.

Its Brutal Side.

"Do you regard prize fighting as brutal?"

"I certainly do," said Mr. Gadspur.

"On what grounds?"

"Personal grounds. The last time I attended a big fight I was shoved this way and that, elbowed, stepped on and bruised from head to foot."

A Candid View.

"You have been returned to your distinguished position many times."

"I have," replied Senator Sorghum. "Your constituents felt they couldn't do better."

"I won't say that. They were afraid they might do worse."

Recognizing the Inevitable.

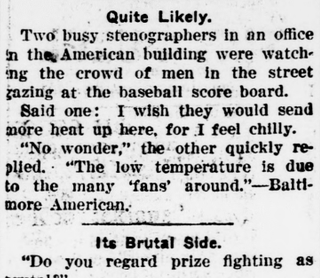
"You seem to have your own way about various important matters."

"I try to cultivate that impression," rejoined Senator Sorghum. "When I see which way things are bound to go, I regard it as prudent to assume that it's exactly the way of which I am in favor."

Temperamental Consideration.

"Would you marry a man for money?"

"No," replied Miss Cayenne. "I'd prefer a husband in moderate circumstances to one who is in a perpetual flurry about his income tax."



HIS STATUES

"What are De Broke's relations with his wife's people?"

"Entirely imaginary. They don't recognize him as a relation at all."

In the Conservatory.

"You are so awkward!" laughed Miss Nan.

"You'd never learn to flirt a fan."

"I daresay you are right," said Bert. "But, watch me; I can fan a flirt."

A Difficult Question.

"Does it annoy you when my daughter practices her vocal lessons?"

"Do you want me to be polite or tell the truth?"

In Chicago.

"Is Flubdub a marrying man?"

"No, he's only made a couple of ventures in that direction. Been married twice, I believe."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Better Way.

"Now that I have graduated I feel that I can fight the world."

"You've got the wrong idea, young man. Don't fight it. Stand in with it."

Once Removed.

"I thought I told you that I wouldn't rent this apartment to you if you had any children?"

"These are my grandchildren."

At the Sign of the Flivver.

North—Something ought to be done to prevent pedestrians cutting corners.

West—Uh-huh. When did you buy a car?—Judge.

Miss Super—What, accept you? The very idea! You poor fish!

Mr. Sappe—I kinda thought you might today. Today's Friday.

Following Instructions.

The Boss—Funny, they're all gone. Did you post that notice to the employees, "You have work to do here, so be at it"?

The Typist—Yes, sir; but I must have left out the space between "be" and "at."

Fair Warning.

Doctor—Take a long walk daily; it will give you a fine appetite.

Patient—Better try again, doctor. If I get a fine appetite, heaven knows when I'll be able to pay your bill.

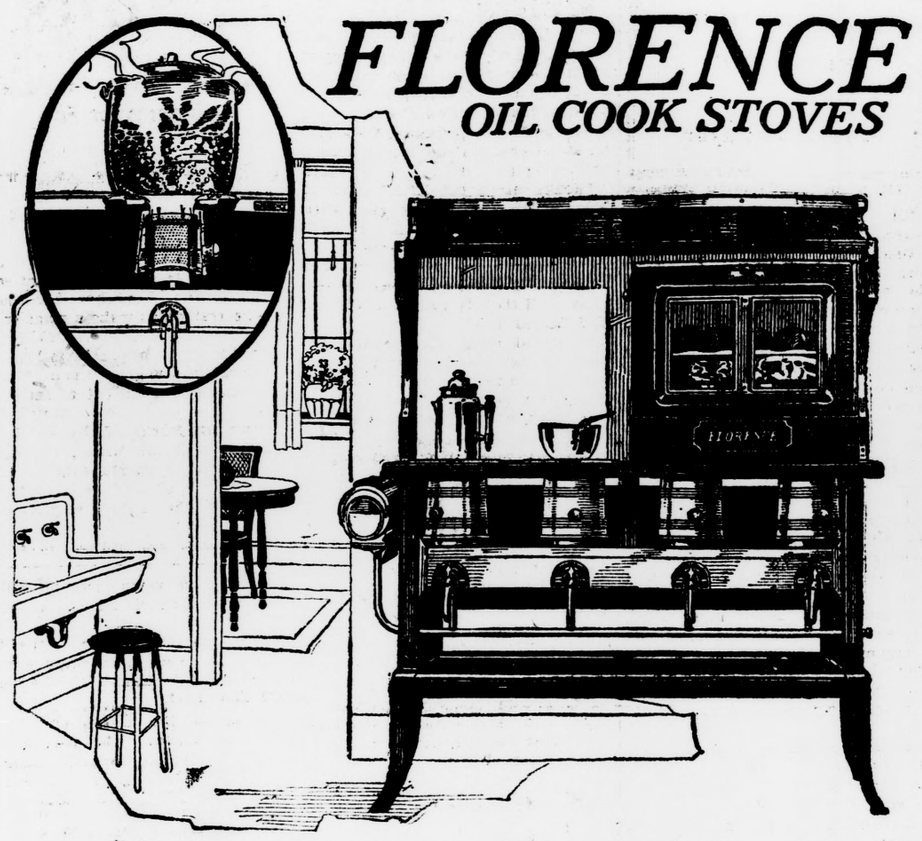
FLORENCE
OIL COOK STOVES



EASY to cook with, easy to control, and easy to keep clean—that's the story of the Florence Oil Cook Stove.

More Heat
Less Care

Burns kerosene. No wicks, no valves. Cooks, bakes, roasts, and does it evenly and thoroughly. Powerful burners direct the intensely hot blue flame close up under the cooking. The heat is automatically controlled by turning the lever handles.

The Florence Portable Oven has a baker's arch that throws the heat to all parts of the oven. We are always pleased to show you why the use of the Florence Cook Stove and Oven means more heat and less care.

Federal Road Bill

Among the measures awaiting action in Congress is that which is called the federal aid bill for the promotion of good road works in the States. It has already passed the Senate, and its approval by the House will put it in operation. By means of the federal aid granted through this measure road construction now under way in the States, which is subject to early suspension through lack of funds, can be continued. In the State of Maryland, for example, the funds will not suffice for continuance of the pending road works for many days longer. If the federal aid bill does not become a law, and the Government funds are not thereby made available, it will be necessary to lay off many thousands of men in Maryland. And what is true in Maryland applies also to many other States. In view of the prevalence of unemployment it is likely that Congress will give prompt attention to this legislation.

Food Supplies Reaching Russia

News from Riga, a seaport on the Baltic, from which commercial and passenger traffic goes by rail into Russia, gives the comforting assurance that thousands of tons of food stuffs have reached Moscow. At this one port many ships have already been unloaded and the bread, grain, and milk started on its way for distribution by representatives of the American Relief Commission. Ships are being unloaded at Petrograd also. These first consignments of food are but a mere crumb to the widespread hunger in Russia, but they are having their effect in reviving the courage and patience of the people. When the children near Moscow tasted the first slice of American white bread and drank a bowl of prepared milk or of cocoa, and rice pudding, the news spread and the thoughts of both children and parents are filled with the picture of the food-bearing ships, and the train-loads of bread.

OLD CUSTOMS HARD TO BREAK

New University City Will Experiment In Effort to Overcome the Traditional Aversion to Anglo-Saxon Principles of Health.

Paris.—It will doubtless require numerous decades to convince Frenchmen that Anglo-Saxons who sleep at night with open windows, drink ice water many times a day, and insist on rooms and living apartments with baths are not a trifle queer. For countless generations the French people have "known" instinctively that to drink water undiluted with wine is highly dangerous, that open windows after nightfall let in damp, cold air which breeds pulmonary trouble, rheumatism and many of the ills that the human race is heir to; that to imbibe ice water and iced concoctions upsets the stomach.

But there are signs today that France is changing. One of the greatest signs of late has been the revolutionary and radical pronouncements of such an authority on hygiene as the celebrated Professor Gariel of the Paris Academy of Medicine, who is now advising his fellow countrymen to forget the aged traditions. The professor points to Americans and Britishers to uphold his "radical" contention that one may drink water in plenty, eat ice cream, breathe plenty of fresh air right around the clock and, in fact, do all the things in France that Anglo-Saxon foreigners do in their own countries.

Great Initial Victory.

It will take longer, in the opinion of France's new "school of fresh air hygiene," to wean the French away from closing all the windows and shutters with the first damp of evening and keeping them closed until the sun comes up again. However, the greatest initial victory comes with the plans which have been jointly adopted by the French parliament and the City of Paris for the new "university city," a distinctly hygienic institution to be built near Montsouris park, within the city limits. French schools up to now have not been noted for facilities of hygiene. The new "university city" will consist of houses three stories high, with lawns and gardens laid between, and in the very center of the architectural group will be a large building containing shower baths, swimming pools, a gymnasium, music auditorium and library. Students at present cooped and crowded in the aged, unsanitary student quarter on the left bank of the Seine will have in the "university city" all the facilities for living, studying and sleeping in all the fresh air that the high Montsouris region and modern hygienic principles can give them. They will be encouraged to sleep with open windows facing spacious places perfumed with flowers and plants.

Under Protest.

The price for student lodgings in this modern city of learning will be about $40 a year. Although a general director will be appointed, his authority, it is announced, will be limited. Students will not be treated as pensionaries, nor cloistered monks. But whether the students will be allowed by the homefolk to bring their university fresh air training into the old homestead is yet to be seen. It is more probable that father and mother will let son or daughter carry on fresh air tactics under protest, while the elders lock their bedroom windows, clamp the shutters tight and sleep as their fathers and grandfathers, mothers and grandmothers have been doing for centuries.

THE MALE VAMP

By PAULINE ALEXANDER.

©, 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Rogerby was known as "The Male Vamp" at Brownyale College. Tall, with broad shoulders and a slender waist, blond hair and features similar to those of the young men in collar ads, his popularity among the fair co-eds at Brownyale was unquestioned. As to his standing among the other male students at the college, this may be represented by the figure "0."

A week before the senior "prom," the great social event of the season at Brownyale, a group of the fellows gathered in Packard's room for a pow-wow. Packard's cousin Arthur, from Cleveland, who had just arrived for a short visit in the East, sat on a stool on the edge of the little circle, saying not a word but taking in the conversation with an amused twinkle in his dark brown eyes. Arthur was slender, almost girlish, and his face was without the sign of a beard.

"It's a darn shame," cried Harold indignantly. "This 'Miss' Rogerby will grab off all the fair young things as per usual and us poor guys with the humble but honest faces will be left out in the cold or have to dance with the chaperons."

There was a murmur of grumbled assents from the others. And so the conversation went until suddenly Arthur got up from his stool and brushed into the group.

"I've an idea, fellows," he said quietly, "and if you want to put something over on this Rogerby I'm willing to help. You see I've just finished putting on an amateur show in Cleveland in which I played a female role. On a hunch I packed the costume with my other things and it's right here in this room. Now Rogerby doesn't know me from a hole in the ground. Tip him off, Packard that your be-yute-i-ful cousin Gladys, or Anemone, or Cynthia, or whatever you like, has come on for the prom and then drop a few hints on how wonderful are those eyes and those lips and that nose."

As the little group caught the idea, there were wild dances, a period of back-pounding and Apache yells.

"And we'll all pretend we're crazy about you," put in Everett, a serious appearing chap. "That's the idea," nodded Arthur; "make Rogerby think I'm a pippin and sure to be the belle of the ball."

So well did the members of that little group do their work, that before the night of the prom Rogerby almost begged Packard for an introduction to his "fair" cousin.

"Irene" Perry was certainly a stunning looking "girl" as "she" stepped gracefully onto the ballroom floor, proudly escorted by "her" cousin, Ralph. At once several of the young men nearby moved towards the two, smiles wreathing their faces.

But Rogerby was quicker than all the rest. His anxiety brought guarded smiles to the faces of the other young men, all of whom had been let in on the joke. Rogerby was the last word in "class." He bowed his most charming bow when Packard, trying hard not to laugh, introduced "my cousin, Irene Perry." And then, offering his arm, Rogerby calmly appropriated "the belle of the ball." A few minutes later the orchestra crashed into the opening bars of jazz, and Rogerby and his partner swung into the latest steps.

"Do you know," said Rogerby, in a tender whisper which had thrilled many a feminine heart before, "you dance divinely." It was after his seventh dance with "Irene." He was leading "her" to a secluded corner where he had offered to bring ices. "Irene" daintly touched a moist forehead with a bit of damp lace and smiled a shy little smile that went straight to Rogerby's susceptible heart "I'm glad you think so," Irene murmured. And Rogerby boldly pressed the hand he held in his.

The young men of Brownyale were having the time of their lives, with Rogerby out of the way, and if, by chance, their fair partners flashed a look of reproach towards Rogerby, there were whispers from their male companions, such as "keep your eyes on Rogerby and his jane, that's all;" or "Wait for the grand finale."

When the orchestra tuned up for the last dance on the programme there was an air of expectancy in the big hall, apparent to all but Rogerby. With a smile aimed to "kill," he leaned towards "Miss Irene." "Shall we drift through heaven for the last time this evening?" he asked poetically. An answering smile was enough. He clasped "her" in his arms and they "drifted" into the dance.

They neared the center of the hall. Suddenly "Irene" gave a little gasp and seemed to falter.

And then while Rogerby gasped in horror, "Irene" pulled off "her" wig of pretty, dark hair and laughed, yes, openly and loudly laughed at him. The laugh was echoed and re-echoed through the hall from scores of throats.

"Well, well," said the voice of Harold, "the 'male vamp' has been vamped by a male." But Rogerby didn't hear. He had fled ingloriously.

Wonderful Results.

New Arrival (to manager of sanatorium)—Are the baths here really as wonderful as stated?

Manager—Yes, sir. Absolutely! Look at that lady over yonder; when she came here she walked with two canes and now she walks with two lieutenants.

Service.

"Our friend insists that he is anxious to serve his country," remarked Senator Sorghum.

"To what line of service is he inclined?"

"I think he is particularly anxious to help pass the pie."

Cynosure of All Eyes.

"Is she very pretty?"

"Pretty! Say! When she gets on a street car the advertising is a total loss."—Boston Transcript.

WASHINGTON SIDELIGHTS

A 3,000-Mile Unfortified Boundary Line

WASHINGTON. — An unfortified boundary line more than 3,000 miles long between the United States and Canada is the best testimony that the world grows wiser and better, President Harding said in a letter read at the dedication of a peace portal erected near Blaine, Wash., in commemoration of more than a century of uninterrupted peace between America and Great Britain.

The portal, on the international line, was conceived by Samuel Hill of Seattle. In recognition of the significance of the occasion the President wrote Mr. Hill as follows:

"The ancient Romans erected a temple to Janus, a dispenser of peace and war, and ordered that its gates should never be closed while the nation was at war. In seven centuries they are said to have been closed but three times. You have erected a temple of peace, whose gates are never to be closed save in war. Already it stands for more than a century of unbroken peace between Britain and America, and we all join in the hope that in coming times it may commemorate an era of peace much longer than the period of wars for which the temple of Janus stood.

"Our century and more of peace with the British empire, our relations of unbroken amity with Canada, the fact that a boundary line over 3,000 miles long remains unfortified—these are the testimonies that the world grows wiser and better. All mankind looks to this example, yearns to follow it; and we are justified to believe that a time is at hand when it may take a long step in that direction. On the occasion of dedication of the Pacific Peace Portal I wish to convey to you personally my high appreciation of your patriotic service in providing a symbolic shrine to international peace, and in doing so, I would also thank the Pacific Highway association (the builder of the portal) for the fine co-operation it has rendered."

Peace Brings Woe to Alley Dwellers

RATIFICATION of the treaty of peace with Germany will be a source of relief to the national government, but it will automatically bring before the District commissioners the problem of providing for the 9,500 persons living in alleys in the city.

One year after peace is proclaimed by the President all structures in alleys must be abandoned for dwelling purposes under a law enacted by congress back in 1914. The law was stated to go into effect July 1, 1918, but because of the housing congestion which existed here at that time congress continued the date to one year after peace.

The treaty has been signed by Germany and may be ratified and proclaimed before the end of this year. In that event the district would have only 12 months in which to prepare for enforcement of this legislation.

While Washington's war population has been reduced considerably, it is apparent to district officials that residential property is still too scarce to make it possible for 9,000 alley dwellers to find homes elsewhere.

The alley law provides that certain alleys may be converted into minor streets provided they can be made 40 feet wide and can be cut through from street to street.

A survey made not long ago for the information of the commissioners shows that there are 80 alleys that could be so converted. These alleys, however, after being made into minor streets, would accommodate only 2,000 of the alley dwellers. There would still remain 7,500 to be provided for.

Harding to Golf With Newspaper Men

PRESIDENT HARDING has signified his intention of participating in the newspaper golf tournament next year. This means, among other things, that Washington correspondents undoubtedly will organize a permanent golf association. They already had planned one, and the President's announcement clinched it.

The golfing skill among the Washington bureaus has a wide range. It runs from McCallum of the Star, who is a plus 2 man and has done the Washington course in its par of 68, to Capt. Leo R. Sack of the Cleveland Press, who went around recently in 186. But the newspaper men of Washington have gone simply crazy over golf. It is said that even the veteran Charles S. Albert of the New York World is endangering the furniture of his office with his mashie swings.

It is seriously to be doubted whether President Harding could bear the tremendous responsibilities of his position without some such relaxation and exercise as this game supplies. Theodore Roosevelt was a noted athlete in several lines, but in Washington ran to tennis. It is not known that he ever tried golf. Roosevelt was extremely democratic and played tennis with anyone who would come along, although his famous "Tennis Cabinet" was composed of an ambassador or two and minor government officials. William H. Taft was a great lover of golf and played more or less regularly with Senator Jonathan Bourne, Jr., although he was by no means exclusive. Mr. Wilson, when first he came to town, tried out all the courses and finally settled on that of the Washington Country club as his favorite.

Women Scrub the Statue of Suffragists

MEMBERS of the National Woman's party, arising with the birds, visited the capitol at six o'clock and interviewed the charwomen detailed to clean the capitol, in an effort to interest the charwomen in keeping clean the statue of the three pioneer woman suffragists, Susan B. Anthony, Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, which was presented to congress last year.

This was a follow-up of a scrubbing which the Woman's party members gave the statue themselves the day before, when they armed themselves with scrubbing brushes, soap and water and invaded the capitol.

Those who appealed to the charwomen were Mrs. C. L. Robey, chairman of the Eighth congressional district of Virginia of the National Woman's party, who led the scrubbing expedition, and Miss Levinia Eagan of Louisiana, a member of the party council. The charwomen expressed interest in the matter, they reported.

Besides keeping the statue of three pioneer suffragists clean, the women are demanding that the room under the rotunda of the capitol, originally designed for the tomb of Washington, and where the statue now is, be cleaned up, too, and kept clean. At present old furniture is frequently stored there. The Woman's party members are negotiating now with members of thee senate and library committee for more fitting treatment of the memorial, which was accepted by congress with fitting ceremonies last year. They have protested for weeks and months to capitol authorities because the dust and dirt has been allowed to gather deep on the memorial.

Year's Corn Crop May Set New Record

RECOVERY of the corn crop during August from the serious damage sustained from July weather conditions featured the September grain report of the Department of Agriculture.

Favored with good growing temperatures and plenty of rain in practically the entire corn belt, the production forecast made a jump of 154,000,000 bushels, bringing the indicated production to 3,186,000,000 bushels, or only 48,000,000 bushels less than last year's crop, the largest ever grown.

With continued favorable conditions this year's production may yet become a record crop. Indications are that most of the crop is now out of danger from frost.

The wheat crop showed a decline of 3,000,000 bushels, with a total of 754,000,000 bushels indicated as this year's harvest. Oats will be a short crop this year, the indicated production having declined 47,000,000 bushels during August, with a total crop of 1,000,000,000 bushels forecast. That is 436,000,000 bushels smaller than last year's crop and 343,000,000 bushels less than the average for the five years previous.

Potatoes showed an increase of 7,000,000 bushels over a month ago, with a total of 323,000,000 bushels, but the crop is almost 100,000,000 bushels smaller than last year and almost 50,000,000 bushels below the average of the five years previous.

Tobacco production indications showed an increase of 59,000,000 pounds over a month ago, with a total of 948,000,000 pounds. The improvement was confined almost entirely to the Northern States.

Wisconsin Girl Defies Handicap

Develops System of Conversing With Others Not Equaled Even by Helen Keller.

IS BOTH BLIND AND DEAF

By Placing Her Fingers on Vocal Cords of a Person She Can Tell What Is Being Said Before Words Are Actually Spoken.

Janesville, Wis.—Overcoming the handicap of both blindness and deafness in a manner which has astonished all medical authorities who have heard of it, Miss Wiletta Huggins, six teen years old, a student of the Wisconsin School for the Blind at Janesville, has learned to listen to the conversation of others through the medium of placing a finger on the vocal cords of the person with whom she is talking.

Denied the power to see or hear, this girl has acquired through practice senses so keen, so accurate and so marvelous that she is believed to have a system of understanding which has never been equaled even by Helen Keller, famous blind girl.

Wiletta, through some strange and unexplainable sense, can tell who is in a room with her or in adjoining room, if she has known the person for but a short time.

Converses With Two at Once.

Through this strange means of conversation, Wiletta may carry on a conversation with two people at the same time simply by placing any finger or one hand on the vocal cords and telling by the vibrations just what is being said before the words are actually spoken.

She is of normal build for a girl of sixteen years, robust and has a healthy color in her cheeks. Unless one studied her eyes they would not readily note her great affliction as she walks with as steady a gait as a normal person would. Upon entering a room where there are visitors she will walk without faltering up to J. T. Hooper, superintendent of the school.

Wiletta is unable herself to understand or explain the reason for her strange method of hearing. It just came to her; this is her only explanation. She has been at the school for six years.

May Develop New Method.

During her first year at school Wiletta was not a very diligent student and was especially backward in studying the point system of reading. She mastered the reading system, however, knowing that it was only a matter of time when she would be unable to see.

The achievements of Wiletta Huggins are attracting such wide attention that one of the large women's magazines of the country contains an interview with her and a story of her success. It is the opinion of psychologists that a new method of teaching the deaf will be developed as a result of the tests which have been made on Wiletta Huggins.

Aristocrats of Russia Peddlers

Once Haughty Officers of Old Regime Are Now Penniless in Turkish Capital.

ONE TRAGEDY OF GREAT WAR

Every Street in Constantinople Is Crowded With Refugees From Russia—Wives and Daughters in Menial Occupations.

Constantinople.—When Russia was a mighty nation under her czars it was the Slav dream to march into Constantinople.

Well, the Russians in their thousands have reached this city, but their presence means not a triumph, but one of the great tragedies of the aftermath of the war.

The allies, and especially France, backed and financed a number of attempts on the part of Russians to break down the Bolshevist government and substitute one that would do business with western Europe.

The last of these mercenary armies was the one led by General Wrangel, who at one time was master of the Crimea.

But just as soon as the Bolsheviks secured peace with Poland, they smashed Wrangel to smithereens. The Crimea witnessed one of the greatest scrambles in history.

Soldiers and their leaders, civilians and their wives and families, clamored for ships to take them away before the avenging Bolsheviks came in.

The vessels which were finally supplied for the refugees were jammed beyond human endurance.

Filled With Refugees.

Thousands of the survivors of this page of recent history were brought to Constantinople.

Every street in Constantinople is crowded with them. Near this city you may see broad-faced Mongolians and Kalmuck Tartars, who were once in Wrangel's army, working on the railway tracks.

In the city itself the Russians have largely turned to peddling.

Their wives and sisters and daughters have taken to waiting in little restaurants or washing dishes or scrubbing floors or doing family washing.

Many have been forced by sheer want into immorality.

And there are thousands who have no visible means of support. They sell nothing. They do not work. They simply walk the streets aimlessly.

Many of them have shirts, but no coats. If you see them with coats buttoned up to the neck, you may know that they have neither shirt nor undershirt underneath. In this blazing hot oriental weather many of them go about with great, long, heavy cossack coats whose collars and sleeves are trimmed with thick astrachan.

Shift for Themselves.

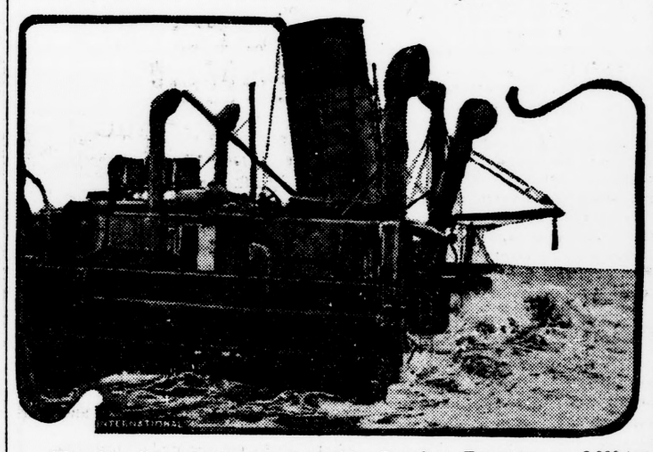
Men who were once officers in the czar's army and later in Wrangel's forces still go about with their epaulets on shoulders. Often one has a wicked-looking Russian officer's dagger at his side.

It would seem that with this great influx of one-time soldiers of adventure, made desperate by want, there would be a great increase of petty crimes. But the 2,500 Turkish police have held crime in check.

For a considerable period the French authorities undertook to feed the 100,000 Russian refugees, the only stipulation being that they should seek work to make themselves self-supporting. But work was the very thing that the great majority of them did not want.

They seemed to think the allies were under some sort of obligation to maintain them in idleness. The result was that the French felt compelled to withdraw all assistance and allow them to shift for themselves.—Milton Bronner, in Chicago Post.

Canadian Steamship Breaks in Two



The Canadian government steamship Canadian Exporter, an 8,000-ton freighter carrying a $1,500,000 cargo, broke in half after running aground on a sand spit off Willapa harbor, Washington. The vessel went on the spit when her compass failed to work. Her crew of 43 were taken off.

Woman's Heel Gets Tangled in Plane

London.—A woman's heel, becoming jammed, caused the wreck of an airplane and the loss of three lives, at Fort Melbourne, Australia, according to a Central News dispatch from Melbourne to the London Daily News. H. G. Ross, an aviator, took Miss Jessie Dorman and a young man for a flight. Miss Dorman's heel became jammed between the rudder bar and the wooden bar, and the pilot was unable to turn his machine, which crashed heavily, all three occupants being killed.

YANK GOBS APPLAUD BULLFIGHT

American Sailors Witness Exhibition of Portugal's Sport.

More a Display of Good Horsemanship and Skillful Feints Than Cruel Sport as in Spain.

Lisbon.—Sailors of the American warships who were entertained in this city when the American squadron visited Portugal the other day, saw a Portuguese bullfight and lustily cheered for one of the bulls.

A Portuguese bullfight is more a display of splendid horsemanship and skillful feints than a cruel sport, such as the Spanish bullfight. There is no bloodshed. The bulls are merely teased by the bullfighters and others, who pierce their hides with their tormenting darts. The horns of the bulls are covered with leather balls, so that they can do no great damage and the proof of the skill of the horseman is never to let his horse get touched by them.

After that a group of peasants wearing green-and-red caps advance into the ring and each tries to throw himself on the bull, either between his horns or on his neck, and to cling there despite the frantic attempts of the animal. If one succeeds in clinging on, the other peasants rush up and hang onto the bull until he is reduced to impotence.

The American boys cheered all this with great enthusiasm, but the real outbreak came when one bull leaped after one of his tormentors over a wooden partition and into a group of bullfighters, scattering them right and left.

Roars of laughter filled the enormous circus and a thundering cheer and cries of "bull, bull, bull" burst from the throats of the Americans.

The bullfighters fled in disorder while the amphitheater resounded with the laughter and cheers of the Americans.

MRS. BOWSER'S STORY

Mr. Bowser Is Going to Write One to Beat It.

By M. QUAD.

(©, 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Mrs. Bowser!"

It was Mr. Bowser who spoke, and in such a deep, bass voice as made the piano tremble on its legs.

Mrs. Bowser looked up inquiringly.

"A great mystery hangs over this house. That mystery is also full of deception. I want it solved, right away. I want to know what has been going on in my own house."

"State your case," replied Mrs. Bowser, but in tones that showed she was somewhat frightened.

"You ran in to see Mrs. Green a few minutes last evening. While you were absent I picked up a magazine off the piano. I am not much of a reader of such things, as you know, because their contents are mostly gush. I just wanted to look at the pictures to while away the time. On opening a magazine I found a letter. It had been opened. It was addressed to 'Miss Jean Carew,' at our street and number, and pulling forth the letter, I found it was from the editor of the magazine. He had accepted a story and sent a check for $30 in payment. Do you know any young lady named Jean Carew?"

"Why—why, I was going to tell you all about it," said Mrs. Bowser. "The editor of the magazine said he wanted stories. I thought that I could write one to suit him, and so I sat down and dashed off one. I did not wish to send my own name as authoress, and so I took Jean Carew. You see, he accepted my story and sent me a check, and I was going to ask you to get it cashed for me. Is there any great mystery about that?"

"Mrs. Bowser, let us look into this thing. In the first place, you wrote this story without saying anything to me about it. In the next place, you took another person's name, and thereby deceived the editor and the public. In the next place, I have read your story, and it is the most nonsensical thing I ever read. It is all mush and gush. The editor must have gone crazy to accept such a story. You have swindled him out of $30 and you should send the check right back!"

"Why, Mr. Bowser, you talk very strange!" exclaimed Mrs. Bowser. "The editor of the magazine is supposed to know what is good and what is bad. He thought this story of mine good enough to publish, and was worth the check he sent me. I don't praise it much myself, but I don't think you ought to condemn it as you do. Mrs. Green and two other ladies read it, and it brought tears to their eyes."

"Bosh—nonsense! A woman would shed tears over most anything. Your story had a hundred faults. There is no plot and no strength. You did as well as you could, but I am not going to have it known that the wife of Samuel Bowser is writing such gush for publication. It shows a weak brain, on your part, and laxity on mine. People will ask why I don't forbid you. Hereafter all the stories written from this house will be written by me. Any checks coming in will be placed in my hands."

"Finds a Box of Gold."

"Well, if you can write a story, why don't you write one?" was asked.

"Why don't I? I am going to write one, in the next two hours, and the check for it will be at least $200. There will be strength and vitality all through it, and it will all be true to human nature. You probably spent three months getting your plot, while my plot has jumped into my brain in less than three minutes. Look at what you call the plot of your story! A girl gets a legacy. Instead of opening a department store or going into the ice business, she pays a visit to the poorhouse. There she meets an old grandma, whose only son sent her there, to be off his hands. Your heroine's heart is touched. She takes the old lady out and puts her in the cottage, and tells her that for the rest of her life she need do nothing but sit in a rocking chair and eat fried eggs three times a day."

"And what is your plot?"

"Why, a girl, in digging a ditch, finds a box of gold. She has heard that the Pawnee tribe of Indians are without a preacher. They have no Thursday night prayer meetings. They are simply sloshing around. She buys a thousand dollars' worth of Bibles and hymn books, and she hires a team and driver, and she drives to the headquarters of the Pawnee tribe. The chief of the tribe is a gentleman named "Kicking Horse." He is willing to accept the Bibles and hymn books, but he is also willing to accept the fair hand of our heroine. He makes this known to her. He cannot have her hand. It is promised to a pawnbroker's assistant in Boston, and she is a girl who never goes back on her word. Old Kicking Horse gets mad, and he gives her an hour to think it over. In the morning, if she does not marry him, he will roast her a beautiful brown at the stake. Isn't that a mighty good plot, so far?"

"Walk to That Tree!"

"It's very thrilling," answered Mrs. Bowser, "but go on."

"When night comes," continued Mr. Bowser, "Old K. H. goes to the maiden's tent and demands that she either roast or marry. If you were writing this story, you would have about a barrel of tears at this point, and your poor maiden would faint away and remain unconscious for about three weeks. See how I do it. Quicker than lightning she draws two automatics from her pocket and points them at the naked breast of old K. H. and, in tones which cannot be mistaken for love tones, she says:

"'You are standing on the verge of the grave! You go! Turn your face to the west and walk right off! About three miles away is a tree. Walk to that tree. I shall be close behind you all the way, and if you do not keep your arms above your head I will fire 18 bullets into the back of your neck. Tell your people not to attempt to rescue you. Now, get along with you!'"

"Isn't that natural, Mrs. Bowser?"

"Very much so," she assented.

"We now turn to the pawnbroker's assistant. Not hearing from the girl by postal card, he gets anxious and fretful. He hires a flying machine and goes West in search of her. He arrives in the Pawnee country just as she is walking old K. H. across the plains. The machine comes to a stop beside her. He smiles and extends his hands. She jumps in beside him, and before old K. H. knows anything about it they are five miles away and speeding for Boston, where they don't lose ten minutes in getting married. It is such stories as this, Mrs. Bowser, that will redound to the credit of our house. I go to write it! Do not come into the library on any excuse whatever. I will finish this story so I can mail it in the morning. You may go upstairs now."

Mrs. Bowser went upstairs, laughing to herself all the way, and Mr. Bowser sought the library. He opened a fresh bottle of ink and got down about 200 sheets of paper.

At midnight, not having heard from him, Mrs. Bowser softly descended the stairs, and softly opened the library door. Mr. Bowser sat in the chair asleep. He had simply written:

"By thunder! What ails my brain tonight!"

Mrs. Bowser gave him a shake and he followed her upstairs to bed. He was asleep in about three minutes, but the old story gripped him and he called out:

"Do your worst, you savage monster! Never will I marry a Kicking Horse! Never, never, never!"

"Jacob's Well."

This well is near Nablus, Syria. It is claimed that it was hewn in the rock by Jacob. A church built over the well was destroyed during the period of the Crusades.

Fiancee Urged Him to Talk Sense

In View of Well-Known Facts Girl Wanted Lover to Drop the Sentimental Stuff.

"Darling," he asked, as he drew his fiancee closer to him, "am I the only man you have ever loved?"

"William," she replied, somewhat testily, "before we go any further I would like to ask you a few questions. You are, no doubt, fully aware that my father is a millionaire something like ten times over, aren't you?"

"Y-yes."

"You understand, no doubt, that when he dies all of his vast fortune will be left to me?"

"Y-yes."

"You know that I have $125,000,000 in cash in my name at the bank?"

"Y-yes."

"And own $2,500,000 worth of property?"

"Y-yes."

"That my diamonds are insured to the value of $125,000 dollars?"

"Y-yes."

"My horses and motorcars are worth $75,000.

"Y-yes."

"Then, for goodness' sake, talk sense! What difference would it make to you if I had been kissed by a thousand men before I met you?"—London Answers.

Lucky Philadelphian.

As the luckiest man, honors go to Nicholas Murphy of Philadelphia. Murphy walked into a moving train between Boothwyn and Ogden streets, on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The locomotive cylinder tapped him upon the shoulder and Murphy described a loop, alighting on his feet. Then he sank to the ground. When a foreman of a gang of laborers rushed to where he was, Murphy sprang to his feet and ran away, thinking he would be arrested for trespassing upon the railroad. He had escaped injury, and the worst damage done was to the temper of the conductor of the flyer, which was delayed ten minutes.

HOW WOMEN AVOID SURGICAL OPERATIONS

Some Are Extremely Necessary, Others May Not Be

Every Woman Should Give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Trial First

Chicago, Ill.—"I was in bed with a female trouble and inflammation and had four doctors but none of them did me any good. They all said I would have to have an operation. A druggist's wife told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took 22 bottles, never missing a dose and at the end of that time I was perfectly well. I have never had occasion to take it again as I have been so well. I have a six room flat and do all my work. My two sisters are taking the Compound upon my recommendation and you may publish my letter. It is the gospel truth and I will write to any one who wants a personal letter."—Mrs. E. H. HAYDOCK, 6824 St. Lawrence Ave., Chicago, Ill.

A Vermont woman adds her testimony to the long line of those fortunate women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after it had been decided an operation was necessary:

Burlington, Vt.—"I suffered with female trouble, and had a number of doctors who said that I would never be any better until I had an operation. I was so bad I could hardly walk across the floor and could not do a thing. My sister-in-law induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it certainly has helped me wonderfully. I keep house and do my work and have a small child. I have recommended Vegetable Compound to a number of my friends and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. H. R. SHARON, Apple Tree Point Farm, Burlington, Vt.

In hospitals are many women who are there for surgical operations, and there is nothing a woman dreads more than the thought of an operation, and the long weary months of recovery and restoration to strength if it is successful.

It is very true that female troubles may through neglect reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same. When disturbing ailments first appear take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. In fact, many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Pertinent Inquiry.

The newest member of Miss Jones' Sunday school class was a lad whose frankness was equal to his curiosity in many matters.

On one occasion Miss Jones' made a few remarks touching untruthfulness and earnestly endeavored to impress her charges with the necessity of being truthful at all times and under all circumstances.

Now the new pupil appeared to be intensely interested in Miss Jones' remarks, and, after due reflection, put this query to her:

"What I'd like to know, ma'am," he said, "is it a lie if nobody ever knows?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

MOTHER, QUICK! GIVE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP FOR CHILD'S BOWELS

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

The Caddie's Retort.

"You know me," said the man. "My regular game—a lot of careless work, but now and then a good shot. Always there are some good shots sprinkled through the day like plums in a pudding."

Frankness makes people disagreeable, but all disagreeable people are not frank.

Fraudulent Alchemists.

Discussing the work of Roger Bacon, regarded as the greatest philosopher of the Thirteenth century, Prof. William Romaine Newbold of the University of Pennsylvania, who has succeeded in finding a key to this wonderful book, speaks of numerous references to alchemy. In Bacon's time alchemy was considered a science and we have records of many workers, some of them honest in their beliefs, but many of them were simply impostors using the desire for gold to obtain large sums of money from their credulous victims, the New York Sun explains.

Pals.

Ethel, age seven, had disobeyed her mother, and as a result was severely spanked. After the girl had had her "cry," she walked into the next room where her mother was sitting, threw her arms around her and said:

"Mother, you and I are pals; we don't care anything about spankin', do we?" And mother could not restrain a smile.

She Despised Them.

A little Brookline girl of seven heartily disliked having to practice on the piano and one day she grumbled about it to a neighbor.

"Why, Mary, don't you like your music?" the neighbor asked.

"No," said the child vehemently. "I just 'spise those little black things sittin' on the fence."—Boston Transcript.

FEED LIBERALLY WHILE MOLTING

Forcing Will Stop Egg Production Without Causing Resumption Earlier Than Usual.

FAT GIVES FEATHER GLOSS

Hens That Begin to Molt Early Do the Job Slowly and Are the Poorer Layers of the Flock—Hen Cafeteria Is Used.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Scarcely anything on the farm is more distressing to view than a lot of hens going into cold weather without enough feathers to keep them warm. It is much like a man wearing a palm beach suit with snow on the ground, and trying to seem unconcerned about it, or the chap who leaves off his overcoat in zero weather to harden himself—so he says.

Forcing the Molt Unwise.

But there doesn't seem to be any help for the unhappy poultry minus their winter clothing. Much was said a few years ago about forcing the molting of hens, controlling it, and so arranging things generally that the hen would get back on the job of laying eggs with less delay. An experienced New York poultryman declared he had solved the problem by cutting down very materially the hens' rations for several days. This was followed by heavier feeding than ordinarily. The menu, or the lack of it, stopped laying, and often resulted in molting at once.

The results were not so satisfactory as had been hoped. In many cases the hens did not finish the molt much, if any, quicker than if they had been let alone. It didn't seem possible by this means to control the time at which the hens could be brought back to laying. Egg production could be stopped all right, but it couldn't be resumed any earlier than usual, and sometimes it looked as if it had been stopped permanently. Obviously, this wouldn't do.

One of the chief attractions of poultry keeping is a constant supply of eggs, let the feathers fall when they may. So the United States Department of Agriculture doesn't advise any one to try systems that seem in conflict with nature, who seems to have a way of her own in such things.

Early Molters.

As a rule, hens that begin to molt early do the job slowly, and are the poorer layers of the flock, while those that molt late get through with it quickly, and are about the best layers. Usually it takes three or four months to complete the process of molting. A few are all through in two months. Some go at it gradually, as if they didn't like to attract attention, while others drop all the feathers they have, or nearly all, at one time, and go about almost naked, with no regard for the proprieties. And while this is going on the hens lay few or no eggs. This is because the growth of a new coat of feathers makes such a demand upon the body that it is out of the question for egg production to continue in any large degree.

The growth of feathers, like all other growth, calls for a plentiful supply of protein in the ration. Most poultry raisers, however, make no effort to feed a special ration at molting time, but continue to give the laying ration which the hens have been getting right along. This is good practice because a laying ration contains protein which goes into the forming of feathers, since egg production practically ceases when the molt begins. Still, some poultrymen like to be sure there is a liberal supply of protein available for the hens during the molting period.

Sunflower Seed in Favor.

Rations which contain a high percentage of fat have a tendency to give the feathers a high gloss. Sunflower seed, because of its fat content, is in favor among some poultrymen as a feed during the molting period, especially with birds which they wish to get into the best condition for exhibition.

BUSINESS OF VARIED RISKS

In Farming Weather Is Greatest Factor, Fluctuating Prices Rank Next in Order.

The farming business is one of many and varied risks. The weather is the greatest risk, weeds are another, fluctuating prices another, and yields per acre, as they affect the margin between cost and income often measure the amount of risk sustained.

MOST SATISFACTORY ALFALFA FERTILIZER

Well-Rotted Barnyard Manure, Free From Weeds, Is Best.

It Gives Best Results If Applied to Soil Before Plowing in Order That It May Become Thoroughly Incorporated.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Well-rotted barnyard manure which is comparatively free from weeds is the most satisfactory fertilizer for fall-sown alfalfa, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. It should be spread on the land before plowing, in order that it may become thoroughly incorporated with the soil. Good results also follow from heavy applications to the preceding crop.

If the manure is not available, a liberal application of commercial fertilizers rich in phosphoric acid should be made. The percentage of nitrogen may be low, but some nitrogen should be supplied for the use of the young plants before they become inoculated and are able to secure their supply from the air. On most clay soils heavy applications of potash have not been profitable. A combination which has been commonly recommended is muriate of potash 75 to 100 pounds, acid phosphate 350 to 500 pounds, and nitrate of soda 50 to 75 pounds. The cheapest and most satisfactory method by which the consumer may obtain such combination is to purchase the desired ingredients and mix them himself in their proper proportions.

WHITEWASH RECIPE IS GOOD

One of Cheapest and Most Lasting Wood Coverings Is Quite Easy to Manufacture.

Government whitewash is one of the cheapest and most lasting wood coverings and protectors. It is simple to make. Take a half bushel of lime and slack with warm water, keeping it covered. Strain through cheesecloth, and add eight quarts of salt, previously dissolved in warm water. Next stir in three pounds of ground rice, boiled to a thin paste, and stirred in boiling hot. Then add a half pound of plaster of paris, previously dissolved with a pound of glue, over a slow fire. Last, five gallons of hot water. Stir thoroughly and let stand for three days. Apply while hot. An application to fences, trees and unpainted outbuildings will add 8500 to the selling value of a farm, and sell it quicker.

CARE IN STORING SOY BEANS

Have Exceedingly High Protein Content and Therefore Subject to Heating and Mold.

Of all farm grains the soy bean requires, perhaps, the most care in storage. Any grain which has a high protein or oil content should have particular care in storage, but the soy bean has an exceedingly high protein content and is, therefore, subject to heating which is frequently followed by mold. If they are not perfectly dry when placed in the bins, there is bound to be some heating; so generally it is best to put them in small piles, if they are the least bit damp, and let them dry thoroughly before they are finally put into the bin.

CLEAN UP BARNYARD MANURE

Material Should Be Scattered on Fields to Permit Sun to Destroy All Insects.

Keep barnyard manure, especially if containing straw, cleaned up and scattered on the fields to permit the sun and drying to kill the maggots. Stack the straw; don't blow it out in an irregular loose pile. Build vertical sides. Keep middle well filled and tramp well. Clean up around the base of the stacks and scatter remnants. If it is certain that the straw will not be used for feed, spread it at once to be plowed under, or if that cannot be done, burn the stacks immediately.

GETTING POULTRY TO MARKET

Speed Was Once Considered Only Consideration—Handling and Refrigeration Added.

Speed was once the only consideration in getting poultry to market, but now to this has been added good handling and refrigeration, from start to finish. The time the produce would keep was so short that the whole course of marketing had to be rushed. Now it's a matter of maintaining even refrigeration.

A negro employed at one of the Hollywood movie studios was drafted by a director to do a novel comedy scene with a lion.

"You get into this bed," ordered the director, "and we'll bring the lion in and put him in bed with you. It will be a scream."

"Put a lion in bed with me!" yelled the darky. "No, sah! Not a-tall. I quits right here and now."

"But," protested the director, "this lion won't hurt you. This lion was brought up on milk."

"So was I brung up on milk," wailed the darky, "but I eats meat now."—Los Angeles Times.

Something Burning.

At a summer camp, two girls shared an upstairs sleeping porch.

One, never having been very far from the comforts of home, knew very little about some of the "wonders" of nature.

Waking, one night, she became aware of a most unusual odor. Sitting up, she called out: "Mildred, Mildred, I smell something burning! I am going downstairs to see about it."

Experienced Mildred drawled: "Lie down, Betty, and go to sleep. That's nothing but a skunk."

Rare Archeological Find.

Not long since, while visiting a gravel pit at Swarling, near Canterbury, England, in search of palaeolithic implements, Mr. Reginald Smith, of the British museum, and Dr. Hoe, of Sturry, learned that the laborers there had unearthed vases of the late Celtic period, and their report induced the Society of Antiquaries to pursue investigations on the site. A fortnight's trial digging brought to light, within a confined area, no fewer than thirteen urn-burials, among them one rich tomb containing six complete pottery vessels, two bronze fibulae and an iron-bound bucket. The style of the objects, which show characteristic native forms just beginning to be influenced by Roman models, dates the grave approximately to the first half century A. D. Adjoining the cemetery were found the remains of an iron-smelting and enameling works of the same early date.—London Times.

Then why blame your husband whose nerves may have been pounded by coffee, and whose rest probably has been broken by the irritation of the caffeine it contains?

If you stay awake half the night you don't feel any too cheerful.

The caffeine of coffee and the thein of tea are known drugs. If their use is persisted in, sooner or later the nervous system may give way.

FARMER LEGISLATION

Any program for legislation designed to beget a permanent, stable prosperity for the farmers must be in accord with a legislative program for general industrial prosperity. This is the corner stone on which the joint commission of agricultural inquiry will build its deport to Congress. The first section of this report will be ready for Congress when it re-assembles, and the other section is expected to be ready by December 1.

The most important fact that this investigation has developed is that outside of legislation which will remove the obstacles that now stand in the way of successful farm organization, and that will affirmatively give the farmers the same credit facilities that industry generally has, there isn't much that legislation can do. The commission will emphasize that it must be kept in mind that the country is prosperous or unprosperous as a whole. While you can temporarily legislate improved conditions for one class or another in relation to the whole, you can't have agricultural prosperity unless you have general prosperity. In order to make the farmer prosperous, in addition to doing those things that will afford the farmer adequate facilities for doing his business, for which the government can properly furnish the machinery (such as credits)—you make the farmer prosperous by doing things that make the country as a whole prosper.

So, to be more definate, the commission will recommend:

First—The passage of a bill something like the Volstead-Capper bill, affirmatively authorizing farmers' cooperative unions.

Second—It will recommend legialation that will set up machinery for furnishing the farmers credit for six months to three years or more so as to fill the gap between the long-time credit furnished by the National and State banks and the farm loan organizations, including the farm loan association, and the short-time credit now furnished by the National and State banks.

To Gain a Good Reputation

The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you appear. That is precisely the manner in which Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained its reputation as a cure for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Every bottle that has ever been put out by the manufacturers has been fully up to the high standard of excellence claimed for it. People have found that it can be depended upon for the relief and cure of these ailments and that it is pleasant and safe to take.

Notice!

Notice is hereby given that the Dispensary for treating Diseases of the Chest, situated on North Board street, (above the American Stores) has been removed to the office of Drs. Lewis & Spahr.

How Better Than Pills?

The question has been asked. In what way are Chamberlain's Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is, they are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then, they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.

A Remarkable Record

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for colds, croup and whooping cough for almost half a century and has constantly grown in favor and popularity as its good qualities became better known. It is the standard and main reliance for these diseases in thousands of homes. The facts that it can always be depended upon and is safe and pleasant to take are greatly in its favor when it is wanted for children.

A Good Physic

When you want a physic that is mild and gentle in effect, easy to take and certain to act, take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are excellent.
